Faculty COVID-19 Impact Surveys
(June 2020 & December 2020)

Background. The Provost’s Office of the University of Maryland, Baltimore, sought to understand the experiences and broad impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on their faculty, staff, and students during the pandemic, requiring virtual work, teaching, research, and service. This report summarizes school-level responses to two surveys administered during 2020. A 45-item survey was sent to all active faculty and adjuncts in June 2020, ten weeks after the transition to emergency remote teaching and virtual work; this survey was repeated in December 2020, with the addition of ten items regarding COVID safety behaviors. The survey was open for three weeks in each administration. Survey questions were primarily derived from the Higher Education Data Sharing Consortium (HEDS, 2020) survey and the National Institutes of Health (NIH) Public Health Emergency and Disaster Research Response survey (Conway, Woodard, & Zubrod, 2020), and were supplemented with institutionally relevant items relating to impacts to research and clinical operations, scholarship, community service activities. Open ended qualitative questions with an emphasis on instructional impacts were also included. Survey results for the school are presented by survey topic area with comparisons to aggregate responses by all UMB faculty. Response categories included in this executive summary were selected to portray significant data comparison points and do not account for all responses to each question. The number of survey responses is summarized in Table 8.

Table 1. University and School Leadership Response

Question Stem	Response	June SOM	Dec. SOM	June UMB	Dec. UMB
Overall satisfaction with support from UMB (including school and central administration) to help adjust to all the changes this spring [June survey] / during the COVID-19 pandemic [December survey]	% Strongly Agree & Agree	78%	75%	83%	82%
